National Agreement Idea Bar in Way of Settlement Of Shop Strike on B. & O.

Nothing Else Stands in Way of Peace Says Vice-President Galloway.

PLAN IMPOSSIBLE ONE

Many Roads Have "Cleared Up" With Organized Labor and Will Block Any Such Move; Can Settle Individually With "Our Men" in 15 Minutes

Addressing an audience of railroad employees of various branches, business and professional men of the city and a number of women, C. W. Galloway, first vice-president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, Wednesday night laid the carriers' side of the strike question before the people in first-hand fashion. He recited the history of the estrangement and declared that the walkout resulted not from any feeling between the Baltimore & Ohio and its workers but because the national officers of the union saw fit to make a national issue out of the troubles of some roads and bring the men on all lines into the conflict.

The Baltimore & Ohio had abided in every ruling of the United States Railroad Labor Board, he said, and had never antagonized its men. He recalled that the road was one of the first to recognize organized labor and then brought out in a sharp manner that the present efforts of shop employees to paralyze the lines was the reward given a company which endeavored to give its men justice along every line.

He did not criticize the workers. He said he felt that practically all of them would return to work if they were allowed to handle the decision individually. The Allies are not lewd to be unwilling to approach the Turks while they continue their advance, any suggestion for an armistice at present, it is believed, would only meet with refusal.

ALLIED POWERS CONCERNED OVER TURKISH SUCCESS

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The British cabinet today laid up for discussion the situation in Asia Minor, which is causing serious anxiety to the Entente. The position arising out of the victorious Turkish offensive and given rise to active exchanges between the Allied capitals both in regard to the possibility of an armistice and the question of safeguarding the Christian population in the districts evacuated by the Greeks. The problem of removing the refugees from Smyrna presents serious difficulties as vessels for their transportation in event of an emergency are not available at this time.

As regards an armistice neither belligerent, so far as is known, has taken any definite steps although the Greeks are reported willing to end hostilities. The Allies are not lewd to be unwilling to approach the Turks while they continue their advance, any suggestion for an armistice at present, it is believed, would only meet with refusal.

35,000 GREEKS KILLED, WOUNDED BY TURK TROOPS

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—The Turkish advance guards are now less than 30 miles from Smyrna, according to late advices from Angora. The Nationalist cavalry is reported making a dash for the coast of Smyrna.

The Greek losses since the opening of the campaign are estimated in the Angora "advices" at 50,000. Of these 10,000 represent prisoners and the remainder killed and wounded.

Angora also reports the capture of an entire Greek army corps of the southern group which was encircled in the region of Salihli and surrendered.

SMYRNA, Sept. 8.—The Greek government is determined not to evacuate Smyrna. War Minister Pheotokis assumed a deputation of officers who waited on his arrival here today.

Russian Reds Seize Two More British Vessels

By Associated Press.

RATUM, Sept. 8.—Russian port authorities have seized two more British vessels, the Hedwic and the Lady Clinor. When the British flag was lowered, the soviet military band struck up "God Save the King," after which the red flag was hoisted to the strains of the "Internationale."

Word has been received from Constantinople that if the ships were not released the British will dispatch a fleet of destroyers to Batum and forcibly take them.

Cork Is Isolated By Cutting Wires

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Interruptions of telegraphic communication between London and Cork and reported interruption between Dublin and Cork led to the belief today that events of great moment are happening in the Cork region especially since fighting was reported there during the night.

That came through last night of the capture of Edmund de Valera and Ernest Childers by National forces. This report, however, has not been confirmed.

POLICE CYCLE HERE

Motor Vehicle Will Be Put to Use at Once.

The motorcycle, equipped with a side-car, ordered for the Connellsville police force, has arrived and will be delivered today. The machine will be used immediately and is expected to be very useful. It is one of the latest models of the two-wheeled craft and is high-powered.

There are some members of the force who know how to drive the vehicle especially Chief P. M. Murphy, who used one for a number of years when the Baltimore & Ohio offered the men they cannot go back because this is a national issue.

"A committee of shopmen could not write its own terms for that reason. I will say this settlement is going to be one of two ways. It will either be by independent or individual settlements or by groups of railroads."

A another point he said the Baltimore & Ohio "has the right of dealing with organized labor. It stands today suffering from a liberal policy with organized labor. Why you want to destroy us, I don't know."

Remarkable that some of the men might wonder how he was fitted to

SENATE SHIES AT BOTH COAL BILLS, DREADING TO VOTE

Reed's Amendment Requiring Wholesalers to Report Sales Defeated.

CONTROL PRICES LIMITED

To Six Months by an Amendment by the Senate, Which Is Opposed to Perpetuation of Power; Question to Be Settled by Joint Conference.

By GEORGE H. CUSHING, Special Correspondent of The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Senate yesterday debated intermittently the coal control bill and the coal commission bill. Both are the unfinished business on the calendar. Both will have to pass through the debate stage to the time when a vote is finally taken before anything else can come up. The Senate seems to be at a standstill at both bills. It does not really want to vote on either. But it has consulted itself to take a vote, and is now dreading the inevitable plunge.

One interesting interlude came when Senator Reed introduced the same amendment to both bills. He proposed to include a clause saying that the wholesalers should report on the 1st and 15th of each month the coal they had bought, from whom they paid for it, to whom they sold it and how much they got for it.

This resolution was attached to the coal control bill but today it was defeated in an amendment to that particular act. It still remains as part of the coal commission bill unless strike therefrom. The last report received half an hour before this is written.

One amendment to the coal control bill which has been accepted by the Senate limits the life of that control to six months after the passage of the measure. This is quite a radical departure from the bill as it was passed by the House. It will be retained in the bill which went through the Senate and the Senate, in its present form, should be in the House again. The present emergency is past. Then the Windham bill is in order, in which ever he sees fit to enact. In fact, he may so decide by re-enacting and call back into existence all the powers in the bill. In other words the position is that the coal control bill shall remain with us from now on.

The Senate, apparently, is committed again to this perpetuation of power and is to do it definitely. It limits the life of the measure to six months. It will be for the Senate once committee of the House and Senate to work out the harmonizing of these two bills. It is not expected that the Senate will give way to the House on this point.

However, that is really a minor detail. It makes no difference whether the present bill grants control of coal for six months or in perpetuity. The present disposition is to let control ride indefinitely. That is, the present bill is limited in its life to six months, another bill will be passed in the meanwhile. The oil bill Congress will be doing by shortening the life of the bill now is to give itself another season when it will consider coal.

McAdoo Will Be Candidate For President, 1924

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, is an avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1924. William C. Lyons of Denver, a former Colorado state senator and sergeant-at-arms at the last three Democratic conventions, got aired here today.

"I saw McAdoo in Los Angeles less than a month ago," Mr. Lyons said, "and he told me very plainly that he would be in the race this time. He will enter the California presidential primaries unopposed and will have the support of such leaders as John N. and Frank J. Bonanno, and the Democratic organization in San Francisco."

FINE GRADE OF NATIVE STONE FOR NEW M. E. CHURCH

Work is progressing on the erection of the basement walls of the new First Methodist Episcopal Church, South Pittsburg street. Some days ago the contractor, J. F. Trimper, completed the foundation to the finished grade lines and is now erecting the superstructure. The style of masonry is random rubble work and presents a pleasing appearance.

The walls are being built of native sandstone, secured from the Detwiler estate near the site of the Breakneck reservoir. After an exhaustive search covering nearly every kind of native stone found in that region the committee selected this stone because of its suitability for the purpose intended over any other kind found nearby.

It is a rich soft brown in color with just enough variation in color to enhance the appearance of the stone work. The main is very fine, blue, causing it to split perfectly and permitting it to be carved into any desired shape. In contrast to most of the sandstones found in the mountains nearby, it is free from streaks. The stone remains moist in thickness, with abundance of cracks and joints. So well adapted is it for building purposes that it has been found desirable to cut the trimmings for the building from Indiana limestone which is commonly used for this purpose, thus saving a uniform color scheme throughout the entire structure.

The order for the stone required in the building has been placed with the Memphis Steel Construction Company, whose plant is located at Greensburg, this facilitating delivery.

Francis W. Hicks, 12 Years, Is Champ At Catching Bass

By Associated Press.

Frank W. Hicks vouches for the authenticity of this fish story, the last that has come across this season. The angler is his son Francis W. Hicks, 12 years old, and of diminutive size 14 lbs. in, in Indian Creek reservoir. Francis made the following entries on the days named last week.

Friday One 16 inches long, one 15 inches and one 14.

Saturday One 14 inches two 13 inches.

Monday One 14 inches one 15 one 12 one 10.

How did he do it? One theory is that he makes it possible for him to keep from view of the fish a ring essential to success. His record is to be a record in the Indian Creek Valley.

The older Mr. Hicks caught one lone fish.

Rescue of Gold Miners Far Off

By Associated Press.

JACKSON, Calif., Sept. 8.—Hope that the buried miners in the Argonaut shaft could be reached by rescue crews in time to bring out alive the entrapped miners faded after it became known today that rescuers burrowing from the 3,600-foot level of the Kennedy workings had yet to pierce 133 feet of caving-in debris and timber and 293 feet of solid rock.

Had Enough Meddling

By Associated Press.

Of the Government in Business in the Case of the Railroads, Which Gave Poorer Service at Higher Cost Than Privately Managed Interests.

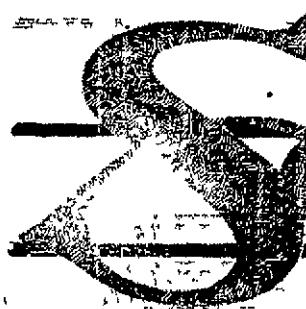

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Senator David A. Reed made his maiden speech yesterday when he presented strong arguments against the passage of the Crampton substitute for the Winslow coal price control bill. He based his arguments on the proposition that the bill is unconstitutional and impracticable and unenforceable.

Says It Is Unconstitutional, Impracticable and Unenforceable.

To Erect Portable Building.

The board of education of East Huntington township Monday evening decided to advertise for bids for a one-room portable building to provide temporary extra quarters for the high school. It was decided to run Rooms 3 and 4 of the grade school at Alverton half-day sessions until the temporary building can be made ready for use. Room 4 is being used for high school purposes and will be available for grade work after the portable building is assembled. Pupils of Grade 4 will report for work at 8 A. M. and will be dismissed at 12:05 and the third grade pupils will report at 12:30 and be dismissed at 4:35.

The president of the board was authorized to appoint a committee whose duty it would be to secure a plot of ground for the site of the new high school which the board at a previous meeting had decided to build at Tarr. The president appointed D. F. Cowan and Edward L. Ross, H. J. Ransier of Mount Pleasant was elected teacher at Tarr West Ward, Room No. 2, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roland Baer of Connellsville. Supervising Principal D. P. Davis reported that all schools were organized and the work was starting off in a way that points towards a successful year.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"TRUST YOUR WIFE," the feature picture today at this theatre, is a first national attraction. Katharine MacDonald, the popular actress is seen in the leading role.

"Trust Your Wife" is adapted from Harry S. Sheldon's stage play "Courage." In this MacDonald gives a splendid characterization of Margaret Hastings, the bride of a young western architect who goes to New York to put over a money-making scheme on a shoe string. The newlyweds put on a big "front" in the metropolis living in a sumptuous apartment which is really beyond their means. Dick endeavours to get the kicking of Slater T. Holcomb, financier and roué. Holcomb, who is attracted by the architect's beautiful young wife, promises to advance money, but later when he learns of their true financial condition he tells Dick that he must put up $25,000 of his own in the scheme. Dick is disengaged and a letter from his bank calling in a note doesn't help matters any. Margaret determines to secretly visit Holcomb to induce him to continue with the contract. She finds him half-intoxicated on his yacht at night. Margaret's subtle appeal finally arouses the Holcomb's conscience. She leaves the cabin but before she can disembark the yacht slips slowly down the river. Dick, who has been informed of the proceedings by another woman who had entered Holcomb's life, arrives at the pier just in time to see the vessel gliding away.

Friday and Saturday Harry Carr will be featured in "The Kick Back" and Sunday in "The Kick Back."

THE PARISIUM.

"A GIRL'S DESIRE," starring Alice Calhoun, is being shown today at this theatre as the feature picture.

Alice Calhoun is the young actress who is not confined to any particular type of role or acting. She is equal at home in comedy and in emotional drama, but in "A Girl's Desire" she has a whimsical role of the type in which she excels.

CAP MUST HAVE PEACE AND QUIET WHEN HE WORKS

An entirely new kind of soap

For all the regular family wash

Just soaking in it loosens all the dirt

Let soaking do almost all the work for you instead of just a little. Soaking in big, lasting, lukewarm Rinso suds loosens all the dirt. A little dry Rinso rubbed on the places where the dirt is most ground-in removes every trace of it.

If you like to boil

If you like to boil your white cottons there is nothing so good as Rinso. Pour enough Rinso solution in your boiler to give you the suds you like. The other soaps and the soap powder you used to use are not needed with Rinso.

If you use a washing machine

Help it to do its best work. Rinso suds have the body needed to get clothes clean without any rubbing. With Rinso you do not have to use a soap powder—nor any other soap. Get Rinso today. At grocery and department stores everywhere. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

THURSDAY EVENG., SEP. 7, 1922.

WELCOME TO THE LADIES.

Connellsville extends a most cordial greeting and welcome to the representatives of the Ladies' Society of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers who are here in attendance at the state meeting of their organization. The members of the local lodge feel gratified to have these ladies as their guests and the city is honored by having been selected as the place for holding the annual gathering.

The husbands, fathers and brothers of these ladies form a part of that great army of men who comprise the forces which move the commerce of the country. In railroad centers like Connellsville railroad employees are an important factor in the community life. A large percentage of them are home owners and all of them are dependable citizens.

The ladies comprising the membership of the auxiliaries of the railway organizations are earnest, zealous workers. In serving as hosts to the visiting ladies they will overlook nothing that will contribute to the comfort and pleasure of their guests and in all respects will maintain the reputation Connellsville enjoys of being generously hospitable to the strangers within our gates. We trust they will carry away with them a good impression of the First City of Fayette and come back again at some future date when they will be just as heartily welcomed as they have been today.

MR. GALLOWAY'S STATEMENT.

The address of Vice-President Galloway of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company at the High School last night gave emphasis, if emphasis were needed, to the fact that the sympathy of the company for its employees has suffered no impairment by reason of the strike of the shop employees. It was also a restoration of the company's willingness expressed shortly after the strike began, to affect a settlement with its own men. The only barrier to such an adjustment is the demand of the national officials of shop crafts unions that no agreement shall be entered into with individual railroads.

Mr. Galloway pointed out that there can be no settlement on a national basis. "This strike," he said, "is going to be finally settled individually or by groups of railroads." Ohio railroads less friendly to organized labor than the Baltimore & Ohio—in fact so hostile to it that they have declared for open shop—are better situated today than the Baltimore & Ohio to handle traffic. They are not only doing so but are taking it away from this road. So long as the latter is prevented by the demand for a national agreement from concluding a settlement, this diversion of traffic from the Baltimore & Ohio will continue and years of effort will be required to win it back again.

Mr. Galloway was consistently in accord with all the facts when he directed attention to the friendly attitude the company has consistently maintained toward its employees, and its recognition of and fair dealing with their organizations. Employers themselves know that there has been a sort of family relationship existing between them and the officials that the company has a real concern in their welfare and has uniformly striven to promote it in every possible way. So long as the employees persist in their refusal to accept the proffer of the company to make an individual settlement Mr. Galloway explained that, in order to preserve its function as a transportation system the company cannot do otherwise than recruit a new force of shopmen. This course is forced upon the company, much against the wish of the officials who have given every possible proof of their desire to deal directly with the men who, long and previously faithful service has helped the road rise to a position of large importance among the transportation systems of the country.

Under all the circumstances it certainly behoves the striking shopmen of the Baltimore & Ohio to give very serious and thoughtful consideration to the statement of the situation which Mr. Galloway made with the utmost frankness and fairness.

No Political Assessments

Wilkes-Barre Record

Before Gifford Pinchot was a candidate in the primaries he informed the employees in his Forestry Department that they would not be expected to take an active interest in the campaign in behalf of any candidate. He also told them that they were under no obligation to pay political assessments. He went further by saying that, if he found that an employee yielded to such demands he would be discharged.

Mr. Pinchot is going to stick to that kind of policy during his campaign. It is stated in one of the dispatches that he will make himself as clear on this point that there will be no doubt in the sincerity of his word. The injunction will not apply part equally to the employees of the Forestry Department for he is no longer connected with it but to employees of all departments in the state government. In the words of the dispatch Mr. Pinchot will tell the job-holders that his first duty is to mind his own business in the interest of the state and keep out of politics.

Everybody who knows Mr. Pinchot knows that he is mean, what he says. It is customary to send out state employees to their respective districts to roll up votes. Mr. Pinchot might profit from a continuance of this system but he wages his campaign on the pledge of clean and discreditable methods and his soul is on them. He particularly dislikes. When he becomes governor he will have the power to appoint heads of departments who will carry out his wishes.

PUTTING UP THE STOVE.

When I was but a little lad
An old base burner stove we had
A stove which was a nickel front
And many a shiny door
Upon its top there stood a dog
A cold and irritating, ratty thing
Now we have a new one which we had
Fully fifty pounds or more.

When I was but a little lad
An old base burner stove we had
A stove which was a nickel front
And many a shiny door
Upon its top there stood a dog
A cold and irritating, ratty thing
Now we have a new one which we had
Fully fifty pounds or more.

Now everyone of us must do
What we can to help out
We'll roll it in without a mile
And start it over again

Then while you give the door a swop
I'll very quickly joint the pipe
And you can hand it in to me
When I am on the chair

and then we'll start it up in a jiffy
And rattle up the parlor rug
With a bang and a bang and a bang
And a bang and a bang

But then the stove would start
So Day would step a little bit
And then the whole house would start
And we had to get out of the chair

He'll knock us down to the floor
And drop the king in his pocket
He'll scratch us with his pipe
And we'll have to get out of the chair

He'll knock his knuckles on his nose
And scratch the king in his pocket
He'll scratch us with his pipe
And we'll have to get out of the chair

and then we'll start it up in a jiffy
And rattle up the parlor rug
With a bang and a bang and a bang

Judge the case of Labor Mr. Galloway cited some of his family history. He told of being born in a house near the Mount Clare shops which is still used by railroad families. His father's father drove the first horse car on the Baltimore & Ohio he declared and his mother's father was a brakeman. His father was a machinist, he said and then became a fireman. He was killed in a wreck in 1883. That marked his own entry into the service, the speaker said as a telegraph messenger. He declared he has brothers-in-law nephews and brothers in the railroad service many as machinists.

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Read the Result

Cincinnati, Ohio—"I suffered for a year with nervous trouble and irregularities of heart so I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal or was up and about. My girl friends and my sister told me I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle of tablets I could do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 13 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if I had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend it to all women although I am going to buy a singing one older."—Mrs. C. I. Petrot, 318 W. Library St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Miss Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.

Speaking of the contrasts between strikers and officials of the Baltimore & Ohio in a luncheon he said he had made a proposal to them which could have been accepted without a controversy over similar to, or later, that all the men went out to a number of places except Mount Clare, the question of seniority would not arise if they all returned at the same time. At Mount Clare he said so many men are reporting for work that none can hardly be handled. Since the strike will end he told his audience 750 men have returned to work there.

The meeting was opened by C. I. Knobler president of the Chamber of Commerce, president of his organization, together with the Klawns. C. I. was responsible for the visit of M. Galloway. He explained that the slight delay in getting the program started was because of many requests to hear him or pray for him to speak.

Sleeves still are the important feature of the coats and wraps and of greater proportions than they were on the spring garments. The sleeves are being set in extremely deep arm holes, some of them extending below the hip line, says Dry Goods Economist. Volunteer's cuffs in fancy styles are liked, but the need of something warm and practical has not been overlooked for inner sleeves. The linings are gathered snailly at the wrists to keep out winter breezes.

The top coats are made of avenger lace of heavy men's wear materials. Double faced stiffs are very smart for sports and motor coats. Musters with bold blacks are made on marshalls lines with odd patch pockets, tabs and inverted plackets. Very often collars of some durable fabric are added. In making them available for wear all through the winter season, breast pockets cut in sailor fashion are seen on men's models.

In the main the coats are beltless except for the knee buckles and decorative street coats.

The sleeves are really the important feature of the new coats. With the simplicity of the straight bias of the rest of the coat it looks as if the designer had given all of their attention to the sleeves. Sometimes tight bands of fur at the wrist merely accentuate the wide bell sleeves. These embroidery and fringe are all we'd like to embellish sleeves which in their size and shape are already ornamental.

During the afternoon a reception committee from the two organizations entertained Mr. Galloway in his room with him through most of the beautiful surrounding country.

The night was warm, and through the windows the air came cool and lulling from the Gulf; but Drace lay until daybreak, before he slept, and when he awoke the noontime bell was ringing. A negro knocked to tell him that dinner was ready. The General and Tycle were seated, but Shortie was not at the table with them; and following Drace's look of inquiry, came explanation from the General:

"I gave him the five hundred dollars that he was to put in with the five hundred furnished by you to be invested initially in that cotton-gaging factory at Vicksburg, and he took an early boat for that city. I think it is a fortunate thing for the South that they discovered a wild plant, a sort of jute, really better for making ropes and bagging than either flax or hemp. I had seen nothing about the discovery, but I am not a very close reader of the newspapers. But Shortie assures me that this wild jute can be grown on the poorest land and that it needs no tending. I am naturally cautious, Virgil, and I did not myself invest, but backing your judgment in the matter, I loaned Liberty five hundred. When do you expect active operations toward building the factory?"

Tycle formulated Drace's answer: "Oh, I am sure it will succeed, and it will be a great thing, especially for Liberty. He has tried so hard, but somehow his energies haven't been properly directed. And he is so capable!"

She was so confident, and so hopeful for her luckless kinsman, that Drace planned protecting villain to Shortie's purposes.

"Well, I don't know exactly when they are to begin work, but soon, I trust!"

She gave him a grateful look for his trust, now perfectly assured of Shortie's useful future. But the General did not appear to be easy in his mind, and a little later when he and Drace were walking about the yard, beneath the trees, he referred again to the investment. Drace would have shied away from it, but the old gentleman cornered him with a question:

"Want the truth, Did Liberty lie to me?"

"Yes, sir, he did!"

"I began to think so the moment he left me. Well, it is a singular thing,

Stepho had a haunt somewhere in the neighborhood. A shrewd old negro had said that the outlaw lived in the swamp, in a house built of periwinkle shells. On the opposite shore, and several miles below the General's home, there is a great wood of cypress and thick tangle of salt cedar, a sort of everglade, a marsh with hundreds of knot-islands here and there rising among the bayous. Here was indeed an outlaw's paradise, for Drace was told that not nearly all its lanes and crooked byways of brown water had been explored. Herein he began his search for old Stephe, day after day penetrating farther and farther into this moss-hanging wild. He did not confide in General Bethpage, for his mission was sacred unto himself alone, and by himself alone must it be accomplished.

At his feet in the canoe lay a rope, one end of it a longman's noose, and he snuffed at it, grim and firm of faith. Sometimes his canoe would stall in the carpet of sump. But he forced his way through into a narrow and unobstructed channel. Now he paddled swiftly. In front of him a great alligator arose and sank, the canoe grazing his scaly back. With a shriek, great birds flew, flapping low, their long legs stretched out behind them. Drace was armed with a revolver, but did not wish to fire it, caution warning him. When he ceased for a time to paddle, how still everything was!

The adventurer liked to feel that no one had ever been there before. But now suddenly something caught his eye. In the green tangle on a low bank he saw a pole with wires strung to it, a sort of gate. The wires were covered with vines, trained about them. But for what purpose, here in this brushy tangle? He caught hold of a weed and pulled the canoe up closer, took hold of the pole and now he found lower slot to which the wires were also attached. Farther along he discovered a sort of bough attached to a snag almost hidden by briers.

"I'll open this gate and see what lies beyond," he mused, drawing the canoe back to the other end. He pulled at the pole, and it yielded. The gate opened, and through the weeds that appeared to have been bent by the passing of a boat, he saw a narrow channel.

LIME CAUSES LOSS OF SIGHT OF EYE TO JOHN LENHART

SOUTH CONNELLSVILLE, Sept. 7.—John Lenhart of the Jolley apartments, South Pittsburg street, was brought home from the Cottage State Hospital recently where he was undergoing treatment for injury to his eyes. Mr. Lenhart, truck driver for the Captain Glass Company, and another employ of that company, were hauling lime in barrel from the L. E. Smith Glass Company at Mount Pleasant to the Captain's factory. As he helped lift the last barrel onto the truck the bottom of the barrel collapsed, part of the contents being thrown into Mr. Lenhart's face.

Mr. Lenhart lost sight entirely of one eye and can not see well with the other, but the doctor expects to be able to clear up the sight in this eye.

Ruben Larry, employee of the Captain Glass Company, who had his legs scalped about three months ago, has about recovered. He is able to walk around.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kendall of South Pittsburg street returned recently from a 17-day vacation. They visited points of interest in the West.

Mrs. Ruben Larry, who has been confined to her home for the past months with a stomach trouble, is not showing any improvement.

Frank Hill of Elizabethtown spent the week-end with his brother, Joseph Hill, of South Pittsburg street.

But he forced his way through into a narrow and unobstructed channel. Now he paddled swiftly. In front of him a great alligator arose and sank, the canoe grazing his scaly back. With a shriek, great birds flew, flapping low, their long legs stretched out behind them. Drace was armed with a revolver, but did not wish to fire it, caution warning him. When he ceased for a time to paddle, how still everything was!

The adventurer liked to feel that no one had ever been there before. But now suddenly something caught his eye. In the green tangle on a low bank he saw a pole with wires strung to it, a sort of gate. The wires were covered with vines, trained about them. But for what purpose, here in this brushy tangle? He caught hold of a weed and pulled the canoe up closer, took hold of the pole and now he found lower slot to which the wires were also attached. Farther along he discovered a sort of bough attached to a snag almost hidden by briers.

"I'll open this gate and see what lies beyond," he mused, drawing the canoe back to the other end. He pulled at the pole, and it yielded. The gate opened, and through the weeds that appeared to have been bent by the passing of a boat, he saw a narrow channel.

Stepho had a haunt somewhere in the neighborhood. A shrewd old negro had said that the outlaw lived in the swamp, in a house built of periwinkle shells.

On the opposite shore, and several miles below the General's home, there is a great wood of cypress and thick tangle of salt cedar, a sort of everglade, a marsh with hundreds of knot-islands here and there rising among the bayous. Here was indeed an outlaw's paradise, for Drace was told that not nearly all its lanes and crooked byways of brown water had been explored. Herein he began his search for old Stephe, day after day penetrating farther and farther into this moss-hanging wild. He did not confide in General Bethpage, for his mission was sacred unto himself alone, and by himself alone must it be accomplished.

At his feet in the canoe lay a rope, one end of it a longman's noose, and he snuffed at it, grim and firm of faith. Sometimes his canoe would stall in the carpet of sump. But he forced his way through into a narrow and unobstructed channel. Now he paddled swiftly. In front of him a great alligator arose and sank, the canoe grazing his scaly back. Progress Toward Return Of Pre-Strike Normal in Coke Region Continues

80.8 Per Cent of Plants, 68.3 Per Cent of Ovens Are in Operation.

OUTPUT NOW 90,300 TONS

About 300 Ovens Going in This Week; Movement for More General Resumption Planned; New Forces Being Recruited From Outside Regions.

From The Weekly Courier.

Progress toward a return to the pre-strike normal in the coke region continues along all lines which have been contributing to that end. Last week registered gains in the number of producing plants and ovens and in regional tonnage.

By an increase of one plants those active at the end of the week numbered 514 or 80.8 per cent of the 63 in operation on April 1. The addition of 161 ovens swelled the running list to 7,993, or 68.3 per cent of the 11,964 turning out coke when the strike began. The gain of 4,200 tons in output, to a total of 90,300, marks another high point of the recovery period, or 80.2 per cent of the 149,900 tons made in the week of April 1.

Of the two operating interests the furnace plants continue to show much the greater improvement, which has been the course from the beginning.
The H. C. Frick Coke Company maintains its lead in all factors of resumption, having on last Saturday had 6,464 or 37.1 per cent of the 6,614 ovens in blast in the last week in March. Ovens being fired this week at several operations of the company will bring the total to a higher point than at any time during the current year.

The improvement in operating conditions having assumed a permanent character, and very decided progress having been made, a movement is now under way to make resumption still more general. Preparations have been under way for several days at a number of the smaller as well as the larger plants to fire ovens as soon as practicable. The importation of men has been on a large scale during the past week and these are being distributed throughout the region. Houses made vacant by the eviction of men who have refused to return to work are being filled so rapidly that comparatively few remain unoccupied.

One large producer which had remained from having works served began last week to have its houses emptied to accommodate new men from outside the region. Considerable fixing up of ovens is taking place this week. Including those at merchant plants it is estimated that approximately 300 additional ovens are being brought into action for the first time since they were forced to suspend early in April.

From the operators' point of view the strike has failed of its purposes.
They realize, however, that there are a very considerable number of men who will not go to work. Instead of making further appeals to them, the operators have come to the conclusion they will waste no more time or effort along that line. Having afforded the striking employees every opportunity to resume their places on the payroll, and at war-time wages, but without very general response, the energies of plant managers are being directed to recruiting new forces. This is going on with so much activity that it's reasonable to expect that the rate of gain in coke production will become greater with each succeeding week.

As a season of more intense activity approaches anxiety grows lest the transportation situation will not be stepped up sufficiently to make possible a prompt movement of cars between ovens and coke consumers, a condition which will have the same effect as a shortage of cars. Inconventence from this source is not expected to be traceable to the traffic now serving the coke region which have been able thus far to handle the traffic originating there. The trouble is expected to develop on connecting lines more or less remote from the region where the effect of the stopmen's strike have been much more severe than on the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburg & Lake Erie and the Western Maryland roads.

The estimated production of coke
during the week ending Saturday, September 2, was 90,300 tons, divided between the two districts as follows:
Connellsville, 75,060, an increase of 3,370 tons; Lower Connellsville, 15,- 240, an increase of 230 tons, or a total increase of 4,200 tons, as compared with an increase of 3,590 tons during the preceding week.

The production by interests was:
Furnace, 73,810, a gain of 3,010 tons; merchant, 16,490, a gain of 290 tons, as compared with gains of 1,740 and 2,120 tons respectively during the week ended August 26.

Of the 161 ovens added to the active list 147 were at plants of the H. C.
Frick Coke Company and 17 at merchant plants. In detail they were as follows: Calumet, 20; Continental
No. 2, four; Crossland, 10; Davidson,
40; Hecla No. 1, eight; Leesburg No.
1, 20; Lemo No. 2, 30; Wynn, five;
Yorkrun, 10; Youngstown, 10; Colonial No. 1, 10; Humphries, eight, and

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia
To Overcome Troubles Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling is one of the pressing, excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs and indigestion are the result of the stomach often loading the stomach with fermenting food and souring, creating the distressing gas which discomforts the stomach and humili-ates the body. It functions as the vital internal organs, often inflicting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a simple and effective remedy with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of illustrated Magnesia and take one tablet a quarter of water right after eating.
This will drive the gas, wind and heat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and give you a new lease of life.
Magnesia (in powder or tablet form)—never liquids or milk—is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and form a permanent food for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion. —Advertisement.
